age 12 to read through fun, interesting and informative ways.

The featured story is "Teachers Smell Like Butterflies," which will be read by its author, Elaine Hardy, of East Lansing. Viewers will get a close-up look at butterflies at MSU's Michigan 4-H Children's Garden, and Don Snoeyink with Thornapple Woodlands, a Grand Rapids beekeeping business, will explore a real beehive.

"LAFCU is committed to helping the communities we serve to thrive," said Kelli Ellsworth Etchison, LAFCU chief marketing officer and chief diversity officer. "Because strong reading skills are essential to life success, the focus of the LAFCU Listen & Learn Program is on making reading fun and enjoyable."
